

Fact: Tax policies affect investment decisions.
It's time for a change.

Work Together. WIN Together.

ALERT: House to hear public testimony on oil tax reform bill today!

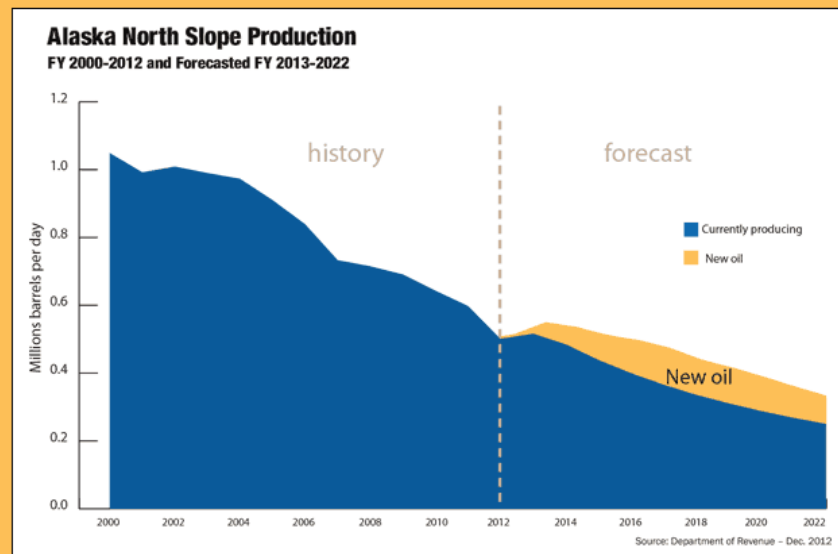

The House Resources Committee will take public testimony on Senate Bill 21, the current Senate bill addressing oil tax reform, today, April 1, between 1 and 3 p.m.

Please present brief testimony at your local Legislative Information Office (LIO) urging legislators to make meaningful policy changes this session to attract new investment and increase North Slope production. For a list of LIO locations click here.

Last week, AOGA Executive Director Kara Moriarty testified before the House Resources Committee about why substantive changes to Alaska's oil tax structure are needed now. Read an excerpt from Kara's testimony, below:

"The industry's greatest challenge today, which we share with the State is the decline of oil production from the North Slope. A healthy oil and gas industry is one that sees the economic benefits of continuing to invest in projects in Alaska and keeping its employees here, where they volunteer their time, talent and treasure to make Alaska a better place to live for us all. Corrections to the ACES tax regime will remove impediments to development and exploration and assist the industry in investing in projects that could both extend the life of TAPS and open up new resources to long term development. We want to create developments that will last for decades more, creating jobs for our children and opportunities for our communities to flourish."

Read the full testimony here.

For the latest updates on the oil tax discussion happening in Juneau, visit www.aoga.org/fix-aces-now.

You also can follow AOGA on facebook and twitter.